MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS AND TO CONTINUE THE DEPOSITIONS OF CERTAIN WITNESSES

The Moving Defendants,¹ through their undersigned attorneys, respectfully move the Court for entry of an order pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 37, (1) compelling Goldman, Sachs & Co. ("Goldman") to produce all documents concerning Goldman's involvement, role and/or participation in Project Truman that occurred between August 2001 and December 2001; and (2) continuing the depositions of any Goldman witnesses, including but not limited to Robert Hurst

¹ Kelly Properties, Inc. ("Kelly"), Veritas Software Investment Corp. ("Veritas") and the UBS Defendants ("UBS") are the Moving Defendants on this Motion. As discussed below, specific document requests were made by the various Moving Defendants, with certain of the Moving Defendants then pursuing meet and confer conferences and other correspondence with Goldman regarding this matter.

(attached hereto as Exhibit K). The reasonable inference is that Mr. Hurst – who, through his involvement in Project Truman, appears to have been aware of Enron’s true financial condition – discussed the concept, terms and conditions of the alleged agency agreement with Enron’s CFO and/or Mr. Lay on the day that the CP prepayments commenced.

III. RELEVANCE OF PROJECT TRUMAN TO THE CP TRANSACTIONS

First, and most importantly, this Court has already determined that Project Truman is not only relevant to the CP litigation, but is relevant beyond the time frame previously agreed to by Goldman – that is, the week of October 22, 2001. See Exhibit A at p. 4.

In fact, the full scope of the Project Truman documents – which encompasses, at most, the four months from August 2001 through the petition date – is relevant. In the preference litigation, Goldman has claimed that it acted solely as an agent and conduit in the CP transactions. This could affect Enron’s claims against Goldman under § 550 of the Bankruptcy Code, as well as Goldman’s rights vis-à-vis other preference action defendants. The complete picture of the Enron CP buybacks cannot be understood without knowing the extent of Goldman’s involvement in Enron’s decision-making process and the behind-the-scenes role played by Goldman as a participant in Project Truman. Certainly, the Moving Defendants are entitled to understand the facts and circumstances leading up to Enron’s decision to draw its revolvers and buy back its CP, and Goldman’s alleged agency agreement with Enron.

Furthermore, the Project Truman documents are relevant to whether Goldman benefited from the CP prepayments. This Court has already acknowledged that discovery is appropriate about whether a defendant is liable as a beneficiary of the transfers at issue. In re Enron Corp., 2005 WL 3873891, at *2 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. June 29, 2005) (attached hereto as Exhibit L). If Enron had defaulted on its CP, Goldman faced potential liability from its customers, such as the Moving Defendants. See, e.g., Franklin Savings Bank v. Levy, 406 F. Supp. 40 (S.D.N.Y. 1975) (finding Goldman liable to its customers for the value of defaulted Penn Central commercial paper). Indeed, a policy manual produced by Goldman mentions the Penn Central default, a subsequent settlement between Goldman and the SEC, and the resulting “affirmative obligations” that were placed upon Goldman to “investigate the creditworthiness of an issuer of commercial paper.” GS ENRON-CP00269-70 (attached hereto as Exhibit M). Thus, what Goldman knew about Enron’s financial condition when it sold Enron CP to the Moving Defendants is as relevant and important as what Goldman knew at the time of the buybacks.

Even if, as Goldman claims, it acted merely as a conduit for funds flowing from Enron to the Moving Defendants, it still may be liable to return those funds under § 550. In Gredd v. Bear, Stearns Secs. Corp., 359 B.R. 510 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007), the Court found Bear Stearns liable to return, to the bankruptcy estate of a hedge fund, over $125 million that had flowed through the hedge fund’s margin account with Bear Stearns. The Court determined that Bear Stearns benefited from those monies because they were used to cover open short positions for which Bear Stearns would otherwise have been liable. Id. at 521. Similarly, the monies that flowed through Goldman’s accounts – if that is indeed what happened – were used to retired commercial paper for which Goldman might otherwise have been liable. In order to determine whether Goldman would have had such liability, it is critical to discover what Goldman knew about Enron’s creditworthiness and when Goldman knew it – facts that can only be ascertained from the full record of the Project Truman documents.

1 there is a guaranty, where a guarantor actually backstops the 2 obligation. We cited you a bunch of cases that say that is 3 the paradigm, and courts have been very reluctant to move very
4 far off from that paradigm, with one other exception. There
5 clearly are cases where someone got a tangible economic 6 benefit from a fraudulent transfer or a preference.

7 I think they cite one example, which is a pretty good
8 one, which is a circumstance where four guys owned a closely 9 held corporation. The corporation is worth $2 million, but 10 they realize they are going to go out of business. So they 11 say, "Gee, this is a bad deal selling the assets for 12 $2 million. It will all go to our creditors. We will sell it
13 to you for $800,000, and you, new company, you offer the four 14 of us long-term employment contracts that would be worth the 15 $1.2 million that should have gone to the creditors."

16 Under those circumstances, the Court says, "Okay.
17 There is a tangible, real economic benefit you got from this 18 transaction, and also parenthetically this transaction fits
19 within the meaning and the literal words of 550, because it
20 was really done for your benefit. The reason why you did this 21 transaction for those people was for your benefit."

22 Nothing in the record possibly supports those theories
23 against us, and this Project Truman discovery exercise is a 24 trip to nowhere. It is a frolic and a detour. What are they 25 going to do? They are going to show they could have had a

1 securities lawsuit against us? What are you going to do then?
2 You are going to try that case? Among other things, if we get
3 to that stage, this case would be subject to mandatory
4 removal, because it would involve a statute other than the 5 Bankruptcy Code. There is no reason. It is not like they 6 need this theory. It is not like they don't have deep
7 pockets. Who actually got the money were Defendants sitting
8 here -- UBS; and Kelly Properties a $5 billion revenue
9 company. It is not like they need to come up with this wacky
10 theory, which no court has ever espoused, because they are 11 dealing with bankrupt people who got the money.

12 When Goldman entered into an Agency Agreement where 13 they said they would hold us harmless, when they go there and 14 say, "Please help us," and when they are going to get legal 15 advice so as exactly not to be here, to drag us in just 16 gratuitously is crazy.

17 Just as a last point I want to make, Your Honor, I
18 know early on in the case we moved to dismiss on 546(e)
19 grounds and safe harbor grounds. You will recall that we 20 didn't convince you yet on that, but I want another shot at 21 that. I wasn't around then. I want another shot at that.
22 You probably already know that on the appeal -- you didn't get
23 the benefit of this, but the SEC and the Treasury Department
24 of the United States both agree with our position --

25 JUDGE GONZALEZ: But you didn't get the benefit of

1 Whether or not we fall under that protection under 546(e), as
2 I said, I would like another chance on my own to talk to you
3 about that at an appropriate time. You cannot believe that 4 they believe that 550(a) was imposing this liability on every
5 single person in the securities industry for every single debt
6 security issued in the United States.

7 So this very (inaudible) doesn't technically make 8 sense, and no court in 30 years ever suggested anything like
9 it; but, also, it is contrary to the policy -- the clear
10 policy -- of the Congress in connection with the Bankruptcy
11 Code.

12 JUDGE GONZALEZ: Thank you.

13 All right. Enron?

14 MR. SCHATZOW: Your Honor, if I might, let me just 15 start where he ended. The case law says "a beneficiary is 16 someone who receives a tangible economic benefit." That is 17 what it says. There is no case that says "it doesn't apply to 18 tort liability"; and just because Mr. Moloney says "the only
19 way we could establish liability is through a securities
20 lawsuit," doesn't mean that that is the case.

21 There are so many red herrings that have been dragged 22 across the courtroom, Your Honor, it is hard to know where to 23 begin, so let me sort of start at the end and work up.

24 Your recollection is correct. It was in this very 25 case that both Lehman and Goldman, and virtually all other

Excerpt to Follow

1 So the notion that there is something fancifully or
2 made up or wacky or dishonest about the notion that there
3 could be liability there is just not so.

4 JUDGE GONZALEZ: What about the issue about whether or 5 not the Commercial Paper are securities or is a security?

6 MR. SCHATZOW: Judge, we have never conceded that they
7 are securities, and we don't believe that they are, if you
8 apply the Reeves test and all the various other tests for 9 whether they are securities or not. We don't think that the 10 liability of Goldman Sachs is dependent on whether they are 11 securities or not.

12 The questions are going to be what were the duties
13 that Goldman Sachs had to its customers, based on the 14 relationship between the customers. Were they tort duties?
15 Were they contractual duties? Were they custom and usage
16 duties? What were the duties?

17 Even if the Commercial Paper ultimately is determined
18 to be a security, Judge, then we get back to all of our common
19 in the trade? What does it mean under the Bankruptcy Code?
20 Was this actually a purchase and sale or was this merely the 21 payoff of Enron's debt? And we get back into all of those 22 questions.

23 It is not an either/or. It is not, "Gee, if Goldman
24 has liability to its customers, because it had non-public
25 information and didn't make them aware of it, and they were

1 trying to protect against it." They monitored that as 2 contingent risk, but the only basis to make a claim for that
3 is securities; therefore, Enron has to lose its case against 4 Goldman Sachs.

5 As you well know, Judge, from the thousands of pages
6 of briefing, there are a lot of issues and the case doesn't
7 rise or fall on that particular issue. It is our position it
8 wasn't a security, Judge. But the case doesn't rise or fall.
9 If it is a security, there is still liability out there.

10 The notion that we have been given full discovery --
11 we have had "full discovery of the credit department" -- we 12 have taken the discovery deposition of one person, Hilary
13 Ackermann. We have another scheduled one coming up. We have 14 other people who aren't even scheduled. They say, "Well, we 15 have made Hurst available and we have made this one
16 available." Judge, we had to have a pre-motion conference
17 with you to get Mr. Hurst's deposition. That is what we had 18 to do, because they wouldn't make him available. "You made
19 him available." They didn't make him available.

20 We are entitled to get the relevant documents before
21 we question Mr. Hurst or anyone else, so that the depositions
22 will be a productive exercise, Judge, and not just a question
23 of I don't remember, I don't recall, or I don't know, when 24 there are documents that people have authored that you can use
25 to refresh their recollection or to jar their memory.

1 it said there were no facts for that in Penn Central, so they
2 vacated that portion of the opinion, but they found it to be a
3 security, to the extent he is going to argue that it is a
4 security.

5 Then he said he has "a custom and usage claim"? I
6 haven't heard that one before, and what would the custom and 7 usage claim be against us on which he would like to take
8 discovery in order to pursue?

9 JUDGE GONZALEZ: My recollection is that that goes
10 back to some of the original arguments that were made as to 11 all of these issues a number of years ago, and I think the 12 custom and usage is a reference to whether or not in the 13 industry the buyers of the Commercial Paper from institutions,
14 like Goldman, had some understanding in the industry that they
15 would make good, if the Commercial Paper failed.

16 MR. MOLONEY: We have not objected to their taking 17 that discovery and they have pursued that discovery, and no
18 one has said that. No witness has said that on the Goldman
19 side and I am unaware of any witness saying it on the 20 Defendants' side or pointing to any examples of where they are 21 actually made whole by a dealer, because the Commercial Paper
22 defaulted.

23 But in any event, if he wants to put that evidence on,
24 but that has nothing to do with taking this discovery as 25 Project Truman discovery. Project Truman discovery would have

SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT TO AVOID AND RECOVER PREFERENTIAL AND OTHER AVOIDABLE TRANSFERS AND FOR OTHER RELIEF

Plaintiff Enron Corp. (“Enron”), a debtor and debtor in possession and plaintiff in this adversary proceeding, by its undersigned counsel Venable LLP and Togut, Segal & Segal LLP, for its second amended complaint against the defendants listed above, alleges the following facts and claims:

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. In the five weeks that immediately preceded its chapter 11 filing, Enron paid out more than one billion dollars to prepay and/or redeem certain commercial paper prior to its stated maturity. (As used herein, the terms “prepayments” and “redemptions” are used interchangeably.) These extraordinary prepayments followed, among other things, the following announcements in the second half of October 2001: Enron’s announcement of a $1 billion charge against third quarter 2001 earnings, the announcement of an inquiry by the Securities and Exchange Commission into Enron’s accounting practices, and announcements by rating agencies of the possible downgrading of Enron’s debt ratings.

2. Alarmed by these announcements, commercial paper holders urged Enron to prepay the commercial paper immediately, prior to maturity, at its “approximate accrued par value,” i.e., the price originally paid for the Enron commercial paper plus accrued interest. Enron began making such payments during a 12-day period, commencing on October 26 and ending on November 6, 2001, to prepay certain previously issued commercial paper. Those prepayments, which totaled approximately $1.126 billion, were made irrespective of the paper’s underlying stated maturity and the current market price.

3. These early redemptions were directly contrary to the terms of the original issuing documents and depleted Enron’s estate, unfairly preferring the holders of commercial paper at the expense of other general unsecured creditors in derogation of the fundamental Bankruptcy Code principle of equality of distribution.

4. Of the total amount transferred by Enron between October 26 and November 6, 2001, Enron seeks to avoid and recover $870,108,723.68¹ in this Second Amended Complaint. For each of these transactions, Enron prepaid the commercial paper at approximate accrued par value, not market value, which was significantly less.

5. Enron has commenced this adversary proceeding to recover the early redemptions so that such funds may be shared equally and ratably by all similarly situated creditors of its estate.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

6. On December 2, 2001 (the "Petition Date"), Enron filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code, 11 U.S.C. § 101, et seq. (the "Bankruptcy Code"). Enron continues to operate its business and manage its property as a debtor in possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code.

7. The Court has jurisdiction over this adversary proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334(b) and (e). This is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). The claims asserted include proceedings to determine, avoid and recover preferences and fraudulent transfers and/or conveyances. In addition, resolution of the claims asserted will have an effect upon Enron's reorganization, the value of its estate, and any distribution to its creditors.

8. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157(a) and 157(b)(1) and the district court's reference of proceedings to the bankruptcy court, this Court may exercise subject matter jurisdiction. Venue in this district is proper in accordance with 28 U.S.C. § 1409(a).

¹ This amount differs from the proposed Second Amended Complaint, previously submitted to the Court. On September 29, 2006, Enron reached a settlement with Bank of America, N.A., ADP Clearing & Outsourcing Services, Inc. and Analog Devices Inc., and Enron is no longer seeking to avoid and recover any of the $19,918,333.20 transferred to those entities in this Second Amended Complaint. Where Enron has not reached a settlement with all of the transferees and beneficiaries to a transfer, this Second Amended Complaint still seeks to avoid and recover the entire amount of the transfer, and the amount recovered from non-settling defendants can be

9. Enron brings this adversary proceeding pursuant to and under Rule 7001 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure and seeks relief under sections 502(d), 544, 547, 548 and 550 of the Bankruptcy Code and applicable provisions of state law.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

132. Prior to the Petition Date, Enron issued and sold unsecured commercial paper to various entities. This commercial paper was uncertificated and had maturities of up to 270 days.

133. Pursuant to Issuing and Paying Agency Agreements between Enron and JP Morgan Chase Bank and its predecessors in interest (collectively the “Chase Paying Agent”), the Chase Paying Agent served as issuing and paying agent in connection with Enron’s commercial paper.

134. The purchase and sale of Enron’s commercial paper, including each commercial paper note identified in this Second Amended Complaint, was made pursuant to terms as set forth in an Offering Memorandum dated September 14, 2001. The Offering Memorandum expressly provides as follows:

The Notes are not redeemable or subject to voluntary prepayment by the Company [Enron] prior to maturity.

135. In addition, the terms of the Enron commercial paper notes identified in this Second Amended Complaint contained no provisions allowing prepayment or early redemption of those commercial paper notes.

136. In a series of transactions starting on October 26 and concluding on November 6, 2001, Enron, at the urging of some or all of the defendants, transferred over one billion dollars for the purpose of prepaying commercial paper notes that had been sold to J.P. Morgan Securities Inc. (“JPMSI”), Goldman, Lehman and other entities when issued. Of the total amount transferred by Enron to prepay Enron commercial paper, Enron seeks to avoid and recover $870,108,723.68 in this Second Amended Complaint. Each of the transfers comprising the aggregate $870,108,723.68 that Enron seeks to avoid and recover in this Second Amended Complaint was made by Enron to prepay individual Enron commercial paper notes prior to the maturity date of those commercial paper notes and in violation of the terms of the sale of those commercial paper notes. (The transfers referenced in this paragraph and paragraph 137 are hereinafter referred to as the “Early Redemption Transfers.”) The transfers that Enron seeks to avoid and recover from the defendants identified below are as follows:

- (1) $327,901,766.55 on October 26, 2001 to Lehman,
- (2) $30,653,374.86 on October 26, 2001 to Goldman,
- (3) $149,328,123.29 on October 29, 2001 to Goldman,
- (4) $97,404,385.56 on October 29, 2001 to JPMSI,²
- (5) $35,956,880.00 on October 29, 2001 to Lehman,
- (6) $77,655,601.39 on October 30, 2001 to Goldman,
- (7) $7,028,195.05 on October 30, 2001 to JPMSI,
- (8) $21,565,813.40 on October 30, 2001 to Lehman,
- (9) $32,891,141.91 on October 31, 2001 to Goldman,
- (10) $13,415,175.00 on November 1, 2001 to Goldman,
- (11) $998,891.67 on November 2, 2001 to Goldman,
- (12) $499,875.00 on November 2, 2001 to UBS AG, and
- (13) $74,809,500.00 on November 6, 2001 to Lehman.

137. When the aggregate $870,108,723.68 in transfers is grouped by each individual early redemption, the initial transferees of each such Early Redemption Transfer, or the entities for whose benefit such transfers were made, or the immediate or mediate transferees, are as follows:³

² Enron has settled with JPMSI and J.P. Morgan Securities of Texas, Inc., and they are no longer defendants. JPMSI is included here only to avoid confusion because the Second Amended Complaint still seeks to recover the appropriate portion of the $97,404,385.56 and the $7,028,195.05 transfers from the other transferees and beneficiaries who have not settled, as explained in footnote 1, supra.

³ The defendants who have settled with Enron have been removed from these subparagraphs. Further, where the Court denied Enron’s motion to amend as to a particular proposed defendant, that proposed defendant has not been included in this Second Amended Complaint. The deletion of proposed new defendants from the final Second Amended Complaint is intended only to conform to the Court’s rulings. The Second Amended Complaint should

138. Upon information and belief, JPMSI, Goldman and/or Lehman informed some or all of the other defendants that the Early Redemption Transfers might be subject to avoidance as preferential transfers prior to the receipt of such Early Redemption Transfers. Therefore, some or all of the defendants knew from JPMSI, Goldman and/or Lehman that the transfers might be subject to avoidance.

139. The prepayment of the Enron commercial paper violated the very terms of its sale, which expressly prohibited any early redemption/prepayment of Enron commercial paper.

140. Enron prepaid the commercial paper at approximate accrued par value, which was significantly more than the market value for such commercial paper.

Count I

Avoidance of the Early Redemption Transfers
Pursuant to Section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code

141. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Second Amended Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

142. The Early Redemption Transfers constitute transfers of an interest of Enron in property.

143. The Early Redemption Transfers were made to or for the benefit of the defendants, each of which was a creditor of Enron.

144. The Early Redemption Transfers were made for or on account of antecedent debts owed by Enron before such payments were made.

145. The Early Redemption Transfers were made within 90 days before the Petition Date.

146. Enron was insolvent when the Early Redemption Transfers were made.

147. The Early Redemption Transfers enabled each of the defendants to receive more than such defendant would have otherwise received if this case were a case under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code, had the Early Redemption Transfers not been made, and such defendant had received payment of such antecedent debts to the extent provided by the Bankruptcy Code.

148. Accordingly, pursuant to section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Early Redemption Transfers, which are set forth in paragraphs 136 and 137, should be avoided so that Enron may recover from the defendants the full amount transferred of $870,108,723.68 plus interest from the transfer dates.

Count II

Recovery of Avoided Preferential Transfers
Pursuant to Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code

149. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Second Amended Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

150. The Early Redemption Transfers are avoidable as preferences pursuant to section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and, accordingly, pursuant to section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Enron may recover from the defendants the value of the Early Redemption Transfers of $870,108,723.68 plus interest from the transfer dates, and costs and fees to the extent available, for the benefit of Enron's estate. Each defendant is jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of each Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraphs 136 or 137 of the Second Amended Complaint.

Count III

Avoidance of Fraudulent Transfers
Pursuant to Section 548(a) of the Bankruptcy Code

151. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Second Amended Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

152. Within one year of the Petition Date, Enron made a series of transfers to the defendants, which are set forth in paragraphs 136 and 137, with respect to Enron commercial paper.

153. The Early Redemption Transfers constitute transfers of interests of Enron in property.

154. Each of the Early Redemption Transfers was made prior to the maturity date of the commercial paper. Even though the market value of the Enron commercial paper had plummeted precipitously after it was issued, Enron prepaid the Enron commercial paper at approximate accrued par value, not at its market value, which was significantly less.

155. If the Enron commercial paper had been prepaid by Enron at market value (not approximate accrued par value), the total price Enron would have paid to defendants would have been a small fraction of the amount actually paid by Enron to defendants.

156. Thus, within one year of the Petition Date, Enron made transfers to defendants totaling $870,108,723.68 to prepay Enron commercial paper at a price far in excess of its fair market value.

157. Enron received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the sums transferred to the defendants and was (i) insolvent on the date that such transfers were made or such obligations were incurred, or became insolvent as a result of such transfers or obligations, (ii) engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction, for which its remaining property was an unreasonably small capital; or (iii) intended to incur, or believed it would incur, debts that would be beyond its ability to pay as they matured.

158. Therefore, pursuant to section 548(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Early Redemption Transfers identified in paragraphs 136 and 137 should be avoided as fraudulent transfers such that Enron may recover from the defendants the full amount transferred of $870,108,723.68 plus interest from the transfer dates.

Count IV

Recovery of Fraudulent Transfers Pursuant to Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code

159. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Second Amended Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

160. The transfers identified in paragraphs 136 and 137 are avoidable as fraudulent transfers pursuant to section 548(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, and, accordingly, pursuant to section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Enron may recover from the defendants the value of the Early Redemption Transfers of $870,108,723.68, plus interest from the transfer dates, and costs and fees to the extent available, for the benefit of Enron's estate. Each defendant is jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of each Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraph 136 or 137 of the Second Amended Complaint.

Count V

Avoidance of Fraudulent Transfers Pursuant to Section 544(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and State Fraudulent Conveyance or Transfer Law

161. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Second Amended Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

162. Enron did not receive fair consideration, or a fair equivalent, or reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfers and/or conveyances made to defendants identified above in paragraphs 136 and 137. The value of the Enron commercial paper prepaid by Enron was disproportionately small as compared to the transfers made by Enron.

163. The transfers and/or conveyances reflected in paragraphs 136 and 137 were made when Enron was insolvent.

164. The transfers and/or conveyances reflected in paragraphs 136 and 137 were made when Enron was insolvent on the date that such transfers were made or such obligations were incurred, or became insolvent as a result of such transfers or obligations and when Enron was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction, for which its remaining assets were unreasonably small in relation to that business or transaction. In addition, when the transfers were made, Enron intended to incur, or believed it would incur, or reasonably should have believed that it would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay as those debts became due and/or matured.

165. The Early Redemption Transfers are avoidable under applicable state fraudulent conveyance and/or fraudulent transfer law. Therefore, pursuant to section 544(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and applicable state fraudulent conveyance or transfer law, the transfers and/or conveyances identified in paragraphs 136 and 137 should be avoided such that Enron may recover from defendants the full amount transferred of $870,108,723.68, plus interest from the transfer and/or conveyance dates.

Count VI

Recovery of Fraudulent Transfers Pursuant to Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code

166. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Second Amended Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

167. The transfers and/or conveyances identified in paragraphs 136 and 137 are avoidable as fraudulent transfers and/or fraudulent conveyances pursuant to section 544(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and applicable state law and, accordingly, pursuant to section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Enron may recover from the defendants the value of the Early Redemption Transfers of $870,108,723.68, plus interest from the transfer dates, and costs and fees to the extent available, for the benefit of Enron's estate. Each defendant is jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of each Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraph 136 or 137 of the Second Amended Complaint.

Count VII

Disallowance of Claims Pursuant to Section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code

(against all Defendants except Fremont General Corporation, Scott & White Memorial Hospital and Scott, Sherwood and Brindley Foundation, Banca Serfin S.A., Longnorth Ltd., The Belo Company, AXA Financial, Inc., MONY Life Insurance Company, MONY Closed Block, Pooled Account #7, Pooled Account #38, Money Market Portfolio/Fund,

168. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Second Amended Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

169. By reason of the foregoing facts and pursuant to section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code, the claims of each defendant should be disallowed unless and until the defendant has turned over to Enron the property transferred, or paid Enron the value of such transferred property, for which the defendant is liable pursuant to section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code.

WHEREFORE, Enron requests judgment on its Second Amended Complaint as follows:

A. On Counts I, III and V, avoiding and setting aside the Early Redemption Transfers;

B. On Counts II, IV, and VI, directing defendants, and any other initial transferee or entity for whose benefit such transfer was made, or as further provided in §550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, any immediate or mediate transferee of the Early Redemption Transfers, to pay to the estate of Enron the amount of $870,108,723.68 plus interest from the dates of transfer; each defendant to be jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of such Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraph 136 or 137, plus interest from the date of transfer;

C. On Count VII, disallowing all claims of each defendant unless and until the defendant has turned over to Enron the property transferred, or paid Enron the value of such transferred property, for which the defendant is liable pursuant to § 550 of the Bankruptcy Code;

D. Awarding Enron its attorneys' fees, costs and other expenses incurred in this action; and

E. Awarding Enron such other and further relief as the nature of this cause may require and this Court deems appropriate.

AMENDED COMPLAINT TO AVOID AND RECOVER
PREFERENTIAL AND OTHER AVOIDABLE TRANSFERS

Plaintiff Enron Corp. ("Enron"), a debtor and debtor in possession and plaintiff in this adversary proceeding, by its undersigned counsel Togut, Segal & Segal LLP, for its complaint against the defendants identified below, alleges the following facts and claims:

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. In the five weeks that immediately preceded its chapter 11 filing, Enron paid out more than one billion dollars to prepay and/or redeem certain commercial paper prior to its stated maturity. (The terms "prepayments" and "redemptions" are used herein interchangeably.) These extraordinary prepayments followed, among other things, Enron's announcement of a $1 billion charge against third quarter 2001 earnings, the announcement of an inquiry by the Securities and Exchange Commission into Enron's accounting practices, and announcements by rating agencies of the possible downgrading of Enron's debt ratings.

2. Alarmed by these announcements, commercial paper holders urged Enron to prepay the commercial paper immediately, prior to maturity, at its "approximate accrued par value," i.e., the price originally paid for the Enron commercial paper plus accrued interest. Enron began making such payments during a 12-day period, commencing on October 26 and ending on November 6, 2001, to prepay certain previously issued commercial paper. Those prepayments, which totaled approximately $1.126 billion, were made irrespective of the paper's underlying stated maturity and the current market price.

3. These early redemptions were directly contrary to the terms of the original issuing documents and depleted Enron's estate, unfairly preferring the holders of commercial paper at the expense of other general unsecured creditors in derogation of the fundamental Bankruptcy Code principle of equality of distribution.

4. Of the total amount transferred by Enron between October 26 and November 6, 2001, Enron seeks to avoid and recover $233,677,604.88 by this Complaint. For each of these transactions, Enron prepaid the commercial paper at accrued par value, not market value, which was significantly less.

5. Enron has commenced this adversary proceeding to recover the early redemptions so that such funds may be shared equally and ratably by all similarly situated creditors of its estate.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

6. On December 2, 2001 (the "Petition Date"), Enron filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code, 11 U.S.C. § 101, et seq. (the "Bankruptcy Code"). Enron continues to operate its business and manage its property as a debtor in possession pursuant to §§ 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code.

7. The Court has jurisdiction over this adversary proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334(b) and (e). This is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). The claims asserted are claims to determine, avoid and recover preferences and fraudulent transfers and/or conveyances. In addition, resolution of the claims asserted will have an effect upon Enron's reorganization, the value of its estate, and any distribution to its creditors.

8. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157(a) and 157(b)(1) and the district court's reference of proceedings to the bankruptcy court, this Court may exercise subject matter jurisdiction. Venue in this district is proper in accordance with 28 U.S.C. § 1409(a).

9. Enron brings this adversary proceeding pursuant to and under Rule 7001 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure and seeks relief under §§ 502(d) 544, 547, 548 and 550 of the Bankruptcy Code and applicable provisions of state law.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

93. Prior to the Petition Date, Enron issued and sold unsecured commercial paper to various entities. This commercial paper was uncertificated and had maturities of up to 270 days.

94. Pursuant to Issuing and Paying Agency Agreements between Enron and JP Morgan Chase Bank and its predecessors in interest (collectively the "Chase Paying Agent"), the Chase Paying Agent served as issuing and paying agent in connection with Enron's commercial paper.

95. The purchase and sale of Enron's commercial paper, including each commercial paper note identified in this Complaint, was made pursuant to terms set forth in an Offering Memorandum dated September 14, 2001. The Offering Memorandum states that, "[t]he Notes are not redeemable or subject to voluntary prepayment by the Company prior to maturity."

96. The terms of the Enron commercial paper notes identified in this Complaint contained no provisions allowing prepayment or early redemption of those commercial paper notes.

97. In a series of transactions starting on October 26 and concluding on November 6, 2001, Enron, at the urging of defendants, transferred over one billion dollars for the purpose of prepaying commercial paper notes that had been sold to JPMSI, Goldman, Lehman and other entities when issued. Of the total amount transferred by Enron to prepay Enron commercial paper, Enron seeks to avoid and recover $233,677,604.88 by this Complaint. The transfers Enron seeks to avoid and recover from the defendants, hereinafter referred to as the "Early Redemption Transfers," are as follows:

- (a) $49,972,000.00 on October 26, 2001 to JPMSI, Lehman and The Northern Trust Company;
- (b) $1,939,655.11 on October 29, 2001 to Goldman, Mass Mutual Prime Fund and DL Babson;

Each of the transfers comprising the aggregate $233,677,604.88 that Enron seeks to avoid and recover in this Complaint was made by Enron to prepay individual Enron commercial paper notes prior to the maturity date of those commercial paper notes and in violation of the terms of the sale of those commercial paper notes. The initial transferees of each Early Redemption Transfer, or the entities for whose benefit such transfers were made, or the immediate or mediate transferees, are as follows:

99. Upon information and belief, JPMSI, Goldman, Lehman and/or others informed some or all of the other defendants that the Early Redemption Transfers might be subject to avoidance as preferential transfers prior to the receipt of such Early Redemption Transfers. Therefore, some or all of the defendants knew from JPMSI, Goldman, Lehman and/or others that the transfers might be subject to avoidance.

100. The prepayment of the Enron commercial paper violated the terms of its sale, which expressly prohibited any early redemption/prepayment of Enron commercial paper.

101. Enron prepaid the commercial paper at accrued par value, which was significantly more than the market value for such commercial paper.

Count I

Avoidance of the Early Redemption Transfers
Pursuant to Section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code

102. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

103. The Early Redemption Transfers constitute transfers of interests of Enron in property.

104. The Early Redemption Transfers were made to or for the benefit of the defendants, each of which was a creditor of Enron.

105. The Early Redemption Transfers were made for or on account of antecedent debts owed by Enron before such payments were made.

106. The Early Redemption Transfers were made within 90 days before the Petition Date.

107. Enron was insolvent when the Early Redemption Transfers were made.

108. The Early Redemption Transfers enabled each of the defendants to receive more than the defendant otherwise would have received if this case were a case under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Early Redemption Transfers had not been made, and the defendant had received payment of its antecedent debts to the extent provided by the Bankruptcy Code.

109. Accordingly, pursuant to section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Early Redemption Transfers should be avoided so that Enron may recover from the defendants the full amount transferred of $233,677,604.88, plus interest from the transfer dates.

Count II

Recovery of Avoided Preferential Transfers
Pursuant to Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code

110. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

111. The Early Redemption Transfers are avoidable as preferences pursuant to section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and, accordingly, pursuant to section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Enron is entitled to recover from the defendants the value of the Early Redemption Transfers of $233,677,604.88, plus interest from the transfer dates, and costs and fees to the extent available, for the benefit of Enron's estate. Each defendant is jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of each Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraphs 97 or 98 of the Complaint.

Count III

Avoidance of Fraudulent Transfers
Pursuant to Section 548(a) of the Bankruptcy Code

112. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

113. Within one year of the Petition Date, Enron made a series of transfers to the defendants, which are set forth in paragraphs 97 and 98, with respect to Enron commercial paper.

114. The Early Redemption Transfers constitute transfers of interests of Enron in property.

115. Each of the Early Redemption Transfers was made prior to the maturity date of the commercial paper. Even though the market value of the Enron commercial paper had plummeted precipitously after it was issued, Enron prepaid the Enron commercial paper at accrued par value, not at its market value, which was significantly less.

116. If Enron had prepaid the Enron commercial paper at market value (not accrued par value), the total price Enron would have paid to defendants would have been a small fraction of the amount Enron actually paid to defendants.

117. Thus, within one year of the Petition Date, Enron made transfers to defendants totaling $233,677,604.88 to prepay Enron commercial paper at a price far in excess of its fair market value.

118. Enron received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the sums transferred to the defendants and, on the dates the transfers identified in paragraphs 97 and 98 were made or the obligations were incurred, Enron (i) was insolvent, or became insolvent as a result of such transfers or obligations, (ii) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction, for which its remaining property was an unreasonably small capital; or (iii) intended to incur, or believed it would incur, debts that would be beyond its ability to pay as they matured.

119. Therefore, pursuant to section 548(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Early Redemption Transfers identified in paragraphs 97 and 98 should be avoided as fraudulent transfers such that Enron may recover from the defendants the full amount transferred of $233,677,604.88, plus interest from the transfer dates.

Count IV

Recovery of Fraudulent Transfers Pursuant to Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code

120. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

121. The transfers identified in paragraphs 97 and 98 are avoidable as fraudulent transfers pursuant to section 548(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, and, accordingly, pursuant to section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Enron is entitled to recover from the defendants the value of the Early Redemption Transfers of $233,677,604.88, plus interest from the transfer dates, and costs and fees to the extent available, for the benefit of Enron's estate. Each defendant is jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of each Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraph 97 or 98 of the Complaint.

Count V

Avoidance of Fraudulent Transfers Pursuant to Section 544(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and State Fraudulent Conveyance or Transfer Law

122. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

123. Enron did not receive fair consideration, or a fair equivalent, or reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfers and/or conveyances made to defendants identified above in paragraphs 97 and 98. The value of the Enron commercial paper prepaid by Enron was disproportionately small as compared to the transfers made by Enron.

124. The transfers and/or conveyances identified in paragraphs 97 and 98 were made when Enron was insolvent.

125. On the dates the transfers and/or conveyances identified in paragraphs 97 and 98 were made or the obligations were incurred, Enron (a) was insolvent, or became insolvent as a result of such transfers or obligations, (b) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction, for which its remaining assets were unreasonably small capital in relation to that business or transaction, or (c) intended to incur, or believed it would incur, or reasonably should have believed that it would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay as those debts became due and/or matured.

126. The Early Redemption Transfers are avoidable under applicable state fraudulent conveyance and/or fraudulent transfer law. Therefore, pursuant to section 544(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and applicable state fraudulent conveyance or transfer law, the transfers and/or conveyances identified in paragraphs 97 and 98 should be avoided such that Enron may recover from defendants the full amount transferred of $233,677,604.88, plus interest from the transfer and/or conveyance dates.

Count VI

Recovery of Fraudulent Transfers Pursuant to Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code

127. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

128. The transfers and/or conveyances identified in paragraphs 97 and 98 are avoidable as fraudulent transfers and/or fraudulent conveyances pursuant to section 544(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and applicable state law and, accordingly, pursuant to section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Enron is entitled to recover from the defendants the value of the Early Redemption Transfers of $233,677,604.88, plus interest from the transfer dates, and costs and fees to the extent available, for the benefit of Enron's estate. Each defendant is jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of each Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraph 97 or 98 of the Complaint.

Count VII

Disallowance of Claims Pursuant to Section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code

129. Enron repeats, realleges and incorporates by reference the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

130. By reason of the foregoing facts and pursuant to section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code, the claims of each defendant should be disallowed unless and until the defendant has turned over to Enron the property transferred, or paid Enron the value of such transferred property, for which the defendant is liable pursuant to section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code.

WHEREFORE, Enron requests judgment on its Complaint as follows:

- A. On Counts I, III and V, avoiding and setting aside the Early Redemption Transfers;
- B. On Counts II, IV, and VI, directing defendants, and any other initial transferee or entity for whose benefit such transfer was made, or as further provided in

§550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, any immediate or mediate transferee of the Early Redemption Transfers, to pay to the estate of Enron the amount of $233,677,604.88 plus interest from the dates of transfer; each defendant to be jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of such Early Redemption Transfer with respect to which it is identified in paragraph 97 or 98, plus interest from the date of transfer;

C. On Count VII, disallowing all claims of each defendant unless and until the defendant has turned over to Enron the property transferred, or paid Enron the value of such transferred property, for which the defendant is liable pursuant to § 550 of the Bankruptcy Code;

D. Awarding Enron its attorneys' fees, costs and other expenses incurred in this action; and

E. Awarding Enron such other and further relief as the nature of this cause may require and this Court deems appropriate.

Excerpt to Follow

Both arguments are without merit.

As a threshold matter — and despite the many pages that Enron devotes to its claim that the definitions raise factual issues — what constitutes a “security” or a “settlement payment” are strictly questions of law to be determined by the Court. See, e.g., Stoiber v. SEC, 161 F.3d 745, 749 (D.C. Cir. 1998) (“Whether a note is a security is a question of law”); Jonas v. Resolution Trust Corp. (In re Comark), 971 F.2d 322, 324-25 (9th Cir. 1992) (“Comark II”) (rejecting debtor’s argument that expert testimony was needed to determine the meaning of the term “settlement payment”); Biggs v. Smith Barney, Inc. (In re David), 193 B.R. 935, 940 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1996) (“[W]hether terms defined in a statute are broad or not obviously are questions of law.”). See also Kaiser II, 952 F.2d at 1237 (10th Cir. 1991); Bevill, 878 F.2d at 745 (same).

A. Commercial Paper Is a “Security” Within the Protection of Section 546(e)

1. The Bankruptcy Code’s Definition of “Security” Is Controlling

Arguing that commercial paper is not a “security” coming within the safe harbor of section 546(e), Enron urges the Court to ignore the unambiguous definition of “security” in section 101(49) of the Bankruptcy Code itself — in favor of the special definition of “security” contained in the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (which, in a proviso, exempts short-term notes), or, alternatively “whether the commercial paper would be commonly viewed as a security by the securities trade.” Ven. Mem. at 69; Togut Mem. at 64.

Enron’s contentions, born of desperation, are wrong.

First, the plain language of the Bankruptcy Code definition of security so clearly includes commercial paper that Enron never once, in 190 pages of briefs, contends otherwise. Section 101(49)(A) defines “security” to include a “note.” 11 U.S.C. § 101(49). Commercial paper indisputably is a “note,” as the complaints concede. See Compl. I, ¶ 136 (referring to commercial paper as “Enron commercial paper notes”); Compl. II, ¶ 96 (same); Initial Mem. at 13; Enron Corp. Commercial Paper Offering Mem., dated as of Sept. 14, 2001 (Declaration of Martin Krolewski, Ex. A) (describing Enron as the issuer of commercial paper “notes” offered under registration exemption under the Securities Act of 1933). And commercial paper is not one of the enumerated types of notes specifically exempted from the definition in section 101(49)(B).

Second, the definitional section in the Bankruptcy Code begins by declaring that all the definitions apply “[i]n this title.” 11 U.S.C. § 101. Accordingly, “[t]he definitional sections, absent a clear indication to the contrary, are applicable to all provisions of the Bankruptcy Code.” Allstate Fabricators Corp. v. Flagstaff Foodservice Corp. (In re Flagstaff Foodservice Corp.), 56 B.R. 899, 905 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1986) (emphasis added). See also Southeastern Bank v. Brown, 266 B.R. 900, 905 (S.D. Ga. 2001) (same); In re Brashers, 216 B.R. 59, 60 (Bankr. N.D. Okla. 1998) (same).

Congress never gave any, let alone a clear, indication to the contrary, and so the definition of “security” in section 101(49) controls with respect to section 546(e) (and section 741(8) (defining “settlement payment” as incorporated into section 546(e)). There is no suggestion anywhere that Congress intended any method for construing sections 546(e) or 741(8) other than by reference to the Bankruptcy Code’s definitions. Neither section of the Bankruptcy Code mentions, for example, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. Such textual silence stands in stark contrast to other provisions of the Bankruptcy Code in which Congress, when it so desired, expressly directed the application of other definitions other statutes. See, e.g., 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(13) (addressing “restitution issued under title 18, United States Code”); 11 U.S.C.

§§ 761(5), (7), (8) (“commodity option,” “contract market,” “contract of sale” and other definitions cross-referenced with Commodity Exchange Act definitions); 11 U.S.C. § 101(41)(C) (referencing Internal Revenue Code definition of “employee pension benefit plan that is a governmental plan” and “eligible deferred compensation plan); 11 U.S.C. § 346(g)(1)(C) (referencing Internal Revenue Code use of “gain or loss”). Absent such language in sections 546(e), 741(8) or 548(d)(2)(B), no such cross-identity of “security” may be presumed. See United States v. Reorganized CF & I Fabricators, Inc., 518 U.S. 213, 219-224 (1996) (refusing to apply Internal Revenue Code “tax” definition with respect to 11 U.S.C. § 507(a)(7)(e) where no statutory indication of different interpretive method); Lawrence Pharm., Inc. v. Best Buy Drugs, Inc. (In re Best Buy Drugs, Inc.), 89 B.R. 997, 998 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1988) (refusing to apply Uniform Commercial Code definition of “insolvency” in lieu of Bankruptcy Code definition); Flagstaff Foodservice Corp., 56 B.R. at 905 (same).¹⁴

Thus, commercial paper is clearly a security under section 101(49); Enron’s only recourse therefore is to avoid the Bankruptcy Code altogether. But “when the statute’s language is plain, the sole function of the courts -- at least where the disposition required by the text is not absurd -- is to enforce it according to its terms.” Lamie v. U.S. Trustee, ___ U.S. ___, 124 S. Ct. 1023, 1030 (2004). See also Conn. Nat’l Bank v. Germain, 503 U.S. 249, 254 (1992) (“When the words of a statute are unambiguous, then, this first canon is also the last: ‘judicial inquiry is complete.’”) (citation omitted).

¹⁴ Citing no authority, Enron argues that a contrary presumption should apply; because “Congress did not link the [section 546(e) safe harbor] defense to the definition in § 101 of the Bankruptcy Code.” Congress intended for courts to ignore the Bankruptcy Code definition of security in favor of some fact-intensive “securities trade understanding, per the 1934 and 1933 Acts.” Ven. Mem. at 76 (emphasis added); Togut Mem. at 70 (emphasis added). There is not the slightest basis for adopting Enron’s proposed presumption.

Accordingly, no further inquiry into whether commercial paper is a “security” under section 101(49) and, hence, within the safe harbor of section 546(e), is necessary or appropriate.

2. Commercial Paper Is a Security Even Under the Federal Securities Laws

Although the Court need never reach this point, the fact is that the inclusion of commercial paper in the Bankruptcy Code’s definition of “security” is consistent with federal securities laws. As the Supreme Court recognized, Congress understood that the term “note” in the federal securities laws includes commercial paper, and thus it crafted express exceptions where it intended for commercial paper to be exempt from the requirements of those laws (such as the definition under the 1934 Act or the registration requirement under the 1933 Act):

There is ... considerable evidence to indicate that the ordinary meaning of the terms “security” and “note” as used by the 1933 Congress encompasses commercial paper. Congress enacted the Glass-Steagall Act as one of several pieces of legislation collectively designed to restore public confidence in financial markets. See the Banking Act of 1933, ch. 89, 48 Stat. 162 (codified as amended in scattered sections of 12 U.S.C.); the Securities Act of 1933, 48 Stat. 74, 15 U.S.C. § 77a et seq.; the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, 48 Stat. 881, 15 U.S.C. § 78a et seq.; and the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, 49 Stat. 803, 15 U.S.C. § 79a et seq. In each of these other statutes, the definition of the term “security” includes commercial paper, and each statute contains explicit exceptions where Congress meant for the provisions of an Act not to apply to commercial paper. These explicit exceptions demonstrate congressional cognizance of commercial paper and Congress’ understanding that, unless modified, the use of the term “security” encompasses it.

(emphasis added). See also Gen. Elec. Co. v. S. Constr. Co., 383 F.2d 135, 139 n.4 (5th Cir.

1967) (“Where a statute with respect to one subject contains a given provision, the omission of such provisions from a similar statute is significant to show a different intention existed.”)

Re: Enron Corp. 3(a)(3) Commercial Paper

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter will serve as the agency agreement between Enron Corp. as principal ("Enron") and Goldman, Sachs & Co. as agent ("agent") with respect to Enron's 3(a)(3) Commercial Paper. Enron hereby appoints the agent to act on Enron's behalf to buy Enron's 3(a)(3) Commercial Paper from the holders of such paper, which tender such paper to Enron. Agent's duties in this regard are completely ministerial, and agent shall have no duties but to act as a conduit between Enron and the holders of Enron's 3(a)(3) Commercial Paper. Agent shall not be responsible for fronting any payments in this regard, but shall simply disperse funds, which shall be provided to the agent by Enron specifically for such purpose.

Enron agrees to indemnify and hold agent harmless against any and all costs, losses and expenses (including, but not by way of limitation, attorney's fees) incurred in connection with its actions as agent in connection herewith. Enron grants agent a security interest in and a right of setoff against any cash, securities or other property held by or due from agent to or for Enron or any other obligation or claim owing from agent to Enron. Such security interest and right of setoff shall be in respect of the indemnification obligation set forth herein and for no other purpose. Enron agrees that Agent shall have no liability under this Agreement except as a result of its gross negligence or willful misconduct.

This agreement, other than the provisions of the preceding paragraph, may be terminated by either party on one business day written notice provided to the other. This agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New York without regard to any conflict of law principles.

This agreement may be executed in counterparts and by facsimile signatures.

Very truly yours,

MEMORANDUM OF SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION
IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' MOTIONS
FOR LEAVE TO BRING INTERLOCUTORY APPEAL

The Securities and Exchange Commission submits this memorandum, pursuant to Section 1109(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C. 1109(a), in support of the pending motions for leave to appeal from the orders of the Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York denying the defendants' motions to dismiss the amended complaints.¹

One of the Commission's primary goals is to protect investors by maintaining the integrity of the securities markets. Settlement finality, a key component of market integrity, means that a transaction will not be reversed or unwound once complete. Settlement finality is essential to a strong, liquid securities market and reduces the possibility of a systemic crisis, which could occur when disruption at a firm or in a market segment causes widespread difficulties at other firms, in other market segments, or in the financial system as a whole. Investors are harmed if they rely upon payments received in settled transactions and must return those payments when the transactions are subsequently reversed. The markets and investors need assurance that securities transactions will not, except in limited circumstances, be subject to reversal in times of financial distress.

Accordingly, the Commission believes that it is essential that the bankruptcy laws promote settlement finality. This is the concern that underlies the protections of Section 546(e) of the Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C. 546(e). Section 546(e) shields settlement payments from reversal through avoidance actions, except in cases involving a payment made with actual intent by the debtor to defraud other creditors, which has not been alleged in this action. The bankruptcy court's ruling that an evidentiary hearing is required before there can be a determination of whether the payments Enron made to the holders of its commercial paper are settlement payments undermines this important protection for the securities markets. Settlement finality is especially important in the commercial paper market, which has been designated a "critical financial market" by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and the Securities and Exchange Commission.²

¹ Under Section 1109(a), the Commission "may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue" but "may not appeal from any judgment, order, or decree entered in the case." 11 U.S.C. 1109(a). Although precluded from itself taking an appeal when appearing in this capacity, the Commission may otherwise participate in Chapter 11 proceedings. Manville Corp. v. Equity Securities Holders Comm., 801 F.2d 60, 61 n.2 (2d Cir. 1986).

An avoidance action is different from actions that can be brought under the antifraud provisions of the federal securities laws or under other appropriate civil or criminal laws. It is important for investors and the markets that those involved in the fraudulent conduct that led to Enron's collapse be held accountable for their actions. The Commission's position that Section 546 shields transactions from bankruptcy avoidance actions does not restrict the availability of actions brought by debtors alleging violations of the antifraud provisions. The Commission also expresses no views on any factual matters at issue in these cases. The Commission is concerned only with the proper interpretation of Section 546(e) and related provisions.

² Interagency Paper on Sound Practices To Strengthen the Resilience of the U.S. Financial System. Securities Exchange Act Rel. No. 47638 (April 11, 2003). The Interagency Paper was prepared in response to the September 11 attacks to address clearance and settlement practices "to ensure the resilience of the U.S. financial system" by "minimizing the immediate systemic effects of a wide-scale disruption on critical financial markets."

BACKGROUND

A. Section 546(e)

Section 546(e) of the Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C. 546(e), provides a safe harbor from the powers the Code gives bankruptcy trustees to bring avoidance actions.³ The protection of Section 546 – entitled “Limitations on Avoidance Actions” – applies only to avoidance actions and does not affect other actions a debtor might bring under federal and state laws, including actions under the antifraud provisions of the federal securities laws.

In enacting this protection, Congress weighed the need for settlement finality against fundamental bankruptcy principles allowing trustees to bring avoidance actions to recover settlement payments made prior to the bankruptcy for equitable distribution to creditors. Congress determined that because of the importance of preventing disruption and uncertainty in the nation’s securities, financial, and commodities markets, settlement payments should not be subject to avoidance except in cases where payments are made with actual intent by the debtor to defraud other creditors.

Because the clearance and settlement system for securities transactions depends upon guarantees by all participants that they will perform their obligations, reversal of a payment to one participant could destabilize the system by exposing other participants to losses. In addition, uncertainty about the legal status of payments could lead participants to not engage in certain types of transactions or to require changes in the way obligations are collateralized, imposing additional costs on the securities markets. Finally, confidence in the securities markets is diminished when investors and others rely upon funds and securities received in settled transactions that are subsequently undone in a bankruptcy.

B. This Litigation

Plaintiffs Enron Corporation and certain affiliated entities are seeking to avoid and recover $1.1 billion in transfers Enron made to the defendants with respect to its commercial paper notes prior to filing its Chapter 11 petition. The defendants include the three investment banks that served as dealers and market makers for the commercial paper as well as some 180 investors that held the notes – investment companies, pension funds, insurance companies, and other institutional and corporate investors.

Enron's complaint alleges that the payments were preferential transfers under Section 547 of the Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C. 547, and fraudulent transfers under Section 548(a)(1)(B), 11 U.S.C. 548(a)(1)(B). The complaint also seeks to avoid the payments pursuant to Section 544(b), 11 U.S.C. 544(b), which authorizes actions under state avoidance statutes.

The defendants moved to dismiss the complaint, arguing that the payments were "settlement payments" made "by or to" entities enumerated in Section 546(e) – "stockbrokers" (the investment banking firms that handled the transactions), "financial institutions" (the banks that handled the payments), and a "securities clearing agency" (the Depository Trust Company, which clears and settles commercial paper transactions) – and thus qualify for the safe harbor. Enron opposed the motion to dismiss, arguing that an evidentiary hearing must be held on its allegations of unusual circumstances surrounding the payments before there can be a determination of whether they are protected settlement payments. The bankruptcy court, agreeing with Enron, held that whether the payments qualify as settlement payments is a factual issue requiring a trial.

ARGUMENT

I. The Bankruptcy Court's Erroneous Ruling Jeopardizes the Protections Afforded Securities Markets by Section 546(e).

The bankruptcy court's ruling is based upon the erroneous view that the unusual circumstances of a transaction are pertinent to the determination of what constitutes a "settlement payment" under the definition of Section 741(8) of the Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C. 741(8). A proper interpretation focuses upon the common understanding of the term "settlement" in the securities industry – the delivery and receipt of funds and securities. Thus, whether a particular transfer qualifies as a settlement payment depends upon whether it involves an exchange of consideration and securities in connection with the completion of a securities transaction. Other circumstances of the transfer have no bearing on whether it is a settlement payment that qualifies for the Section 546(e) safe harbor. This is an easily applied test, consistent with the statutory purpose of providing broad protection for securities transactions.

The court rejected this view of what constitutes a settlement payment, ruling that there must be an evidentiary hearing into the circumstances of the transaction in order to determine whether a payment is common in the securities trade and thus qualifies as a settlement payment. It would defeat the purpose of the Section 546(e) safe harbor if there must be such a hearing before there can be a determination of whether a particular payment qualifies as a "settlement payment," replacing the statutory safe harbor with the prospect of protracted litigation.

The Commission is concerned that the bankruptcy court's interpretation would frustrate the fundamental purpose of Section 546(e) of promoting settlement finality and protecting the securities markets from uncertainty and disruption.

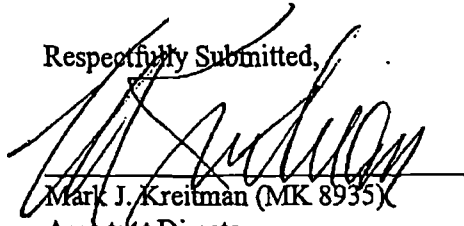

II. An Immediate Interlocutory Appeal Is Necessary.

We urge the District Court to grant an interlocutory appeal of the bankruptcy court's decision. Without an interlocutory appeal, it will be several years before a final judgment is entered and the legal issues raised can be reviewed on appeal. During that time there will be uncertainty in the securities, commodities, and financial markets about the proper interpretation and application of the settlement payment definition. It is important that the bankruptcy court's decision, which the Commission believes seriously undermines the protections Congress enacted for the markets, be subject to immediate review by the District Court.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission urges that the motions for leave to appeal be granted.

Respectfully Submitted,
